Thanks. I can't really imagine that someone who sells PPW as a highly desirable location would not feel this is going to hurt real estate, but maybe as you say, she is conflicted over split loyalties. Don't ruin a relationship over it. Sending her Bob's piece is a good idea.

I just talked with Libby Ryan and she is at best ambivalent at this point, privately as well as publically. I'm not so sure whether it is Landmarks (she is a Commissioner) or business that holds her back but she won't come out against it. I will keep on her - I will forward Bob Linn's piece to her in case she didn't see it and we should see that she gets copies when people put well reasoned arguments together but I wouldn't hold my breath.
